PORTLAND'S TRANSPORT WAY

Spokane, Portland & Seattle, Northern type number 700; Union Pacific, Pacific type number 3203; and a Shay locomotive formerly operated by the Mt. Emily Lumber Company between La Grande and various locations in the Blue Mountains of Eastern Oregon; will soon be placed in Oaks Park, Portland. Railroad enthusiasts and others interested in Portland having a fine exhibit of steam locomotives should start some real action to obtain Northern Pacific ten-wheeler number 1361 which soon will be retired. This locomotive is a facsimile of Casey Jones' famous ten-wheeler number 382.

ECHOS OF THE SPRAGUE RIVER WAYFARER

Central Coast Railway Club scores another triumph in railfandom. The trip really made history.

Articles by David F. Myrick anent the Oregon, California & Eastern Railway and by T. S. Durment pertaining to the history of the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company published in the Sprague River Wayfarer Edition of The Ferroequinologist are literary gems.

Plaudits to Weyerhaeuser Magazine for the story and pictures relating to the first passenger train to be operated over its mile-high railroad between Sycan Junction and Camp Nine, Oregon.

In most instances history is deprived of a lot of good information due to inadequate reporting, but not in the case of the Sprague River Wayfarer.
